THE third international conference of Fashion Incubators, an initiative to nurture and support up and coming designers, saw fashion delegates from 24 countries visit Perth.

34 seminar presentations were made during the three-day conference covering a wide range of fashion-related business topics. Speakers included Susan Langdon from Toronto Fashion Incubator, Sheelagh Wright from Britain's University for the Creative Arts, Indonesia Fashion Week's Ali Charisma and Karen Webster from RMIT in Melbourne.

It culminated with a three-course dinner at the Parmelia Hilton. Guests watched on as new season collections hit the runway, including local labels Leanne Lim, Hue Le and Cinderocker.

The conference also announced the establishment of an International Fashion Incubator Organisation.

"It was fantastic to have that many people passionate about assisting the emerging fashion, textile, clothing, leather and footwear industry around the world, all in one place," said conference convenor Carol Hanlon.

The fourth International Conference of Fashion Incubators will be held in Canada by the Toronto Fashion Incubator in 2013.
